Chidorigafuchi Ryokudo

This promenade is close to 700m long and goes along the Chidorigafuchi moat, located at the west side of the Imperial Palace. This is one of the most famous cherry blossom viewing spots in Japan. This path has around 260 cherry trees (such as Someiyoshino, Oshimazakura, and so on) that welcome you as you walk through a tunnel of cherry blossoms. During the best season, more than one million people visit from all over Japan.

Kitanomaru Park

This is one of the best spots for cherry blossom viewing in Tokyo, where many cherry trees were planted in the 1960's. This includes around 330 Someiyoshinos planted in the park, where you can also enjoy nature, such as the pond and fields. The promenade along the bank at the side of Chidorigafuchi is especially beautiful. The cherry trees along with Tabunokis or Mizukis can be seen from a higher position, where their branches in full blossom are extended to the moat's surface. The landscape full of gorgeous cherry blossoms is truly breathtaking.

Chidorigafuchi Boat Site

During the cherry blossom festival, business hours are extended. By boat, you can enjoy cherry blossoms lit up at night along the surface of the moat.

British Embassy in Tokyo

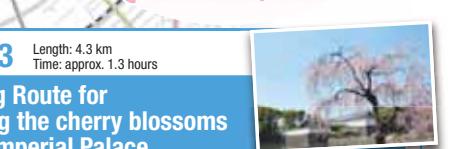

The cherry trees in front of British Embassy were planted by the diplomat, Ernest Sato in 1897. It is supposed that at that period, people enjoyed the view of Mt.Fuji, Tokyo Bay and these cherry trees at the same time.

Chidorigafuchi Park

Chidorigafuchi Park is located between the British Embassy and the Chidorigafuchi Moat at the west side of the Imperial Palace. There are nearly 170 cherry trees (such as Someiyoshino, Yamazakura and so on). You can enjoy the landscape of cherry blossoms and Nanohana (rape blossoms) near the moat, forming a remarkable contrast of pink and yellow.
